Importance of Economics can hardly be overstated while we are walking towards completion of first quarter of 21 st Century.

Especially the decade from 2008 to 2020, economists as well as economics has been in discussion like never before. This has highlighted the necessity of economics education and research more prominently. Especially Post-COVID19 employment landscape is set to change in a big way with rising demand for skills like holistic understanding of business and market environment, data driven decision making process and strategic thinking. No other degree than Economics suits more perfectly for the requirements of Jobs of future. We at MIT-WPU School of Economics aims at holistic development of students for the future with valued based and technology-driven education system.

We welcome all of you to join our hands in our mission of skilling young India for the future!

Dr. Jayraj Rajaih

Head of School

MIT- WPU School of economics is dedicated to the task of creating ethical, spirited and committed economic leaders & professionals for the country from the grassroots and from all walks of life.

We will achieve this by exposing students to a wider horizon of economic knowledge and its application infusing in them a sense of national pride, values and empathy for common people. School of Economics in the MIT- World Peace University has also taken up the challenge to prepare future leaders who can take up the challenges of the Indian Economy and Business. During the three years period of their graduation, students in the Business Economies are exposed to the challenges faced by the Indian Economy and Business. They are able to acquire strong analytical skills – both Quantitative as well as Qualitative – which equip them to overcome the challenges and offer solutions in their respective area of operations.
